View Source Comments Share Towers Towers is the only way to deal with enemies. They are necessary for loading and playing a player. Each tower has its own capacity and purchase cost associated with that tower. Most towers are aggressive towers. However, some may provide support in its own way. Each has its own strategy associated with them and most towers can reach their full potential in conjunction with other towers. Disclaimer - Due to the wishes of developers, developer-only towers have no articles. However, their icons can be seen below. View Source Comments Share WARNING Leak (and possibly even use) any codes that are not intended to be used yet (such as codes intended for release by a public person) will result in a ban on official TDS Discord and TDS Wikia at the request of developers. Only codes added to this page by TDS Wiki staff are allowed to be redeemed. Leaking the reward they give (like all the evolution skins of a tower) will also lead to a block in the Wikia TDS. We are not responsible for any action taken against those who leak the code or use the code. Codes Codes are small gifts that developers sometimes give out that are redeemable for EXP, $Coins or sometimes towers, skins and emotes. In rare cases, towers and emotes can later be moved to the store (such as the Russian tower of Emote and John, now the militant tower). Most codes can only be redeemed for a limited period of time but some (such as the Hunter Tower) are available for extended periods of time. You can redeem the codes by entering a code in the code box on the left side of your screen in the form of a twitter logo every time you are in the lobby. For skin codes, you must have that tower to redeem the code. If you don't have the tower, you can't redeem the code. All dates are in European date format (DD/MM/YYYY). View Source Comments Share Skincrates Skincrates in Tower Defense Simulator are items used to unlock skins for towers. Skincrates can be purchased with coins, Robux or tickets. Some Skincrates are event-exclusive, such as Bunny Skincrate. This means that they cannot be purchased after the event ends. Some Skincrates can be obtained through daily rewards or rewards. Each Skincrate has specific skins that only they can unlock. A Skincrate unlocks a skin and each Skincrate has a limited amount of skins to unlock. You can buy excess Skincrates, but for some Skincrates, they can't be used, and for others, it will give you a skin you already own. To open a Skincrate, you need to go to the Boxes section of your store while in the lobby and open that box. Using a Skncrate will randomly assign a skin that can be taken from this box to you. A specific skin for a particular tower cannot be selected in advance. You can't get a skin for a tower that doesn't belong to you. For the most part, skins are only cosmetic reviews of that tower, without adding bonuses. An exception to this is Skins taken from Skincrate Gold, as they give additional statistics. Not all skins can be found in Skincrates as some can only be taken through a code, such as spring commander. To equip a skin, you need to go to the troops section of your inventory while in the lobby and select the specific tower you want to equip a skin for. Shop Event Removed Crate Platinum Skincrate Get Win in all difficulties on 5 maps. Community content shall be made available under CC-BY-SA, unless otherwise stated.
